

The Ballad of the Wandering Star

In a valley where the shadows lie

A maiden waits alone

Her lover sailed beneath the sky

To lands and seas unknown.

She gazes at the stars each night

And whispers to the breeze

"Return to me, my heart's true light

Across the distant seas."

The years go by, the seasons turn

Yet still, her heart remains

In dreams her love will ever burn.

Despite the time's refrains.

One night, she feels a gentle kiss

In starlight from afar

Her lover's love, in endless bliss

Now shines a wandering star.